The work of repairing the waterworks is pro ceding nicely under the foremanship of Geo. Mergelsteyl.

Miss Ida McDonald of Spring Hill N. S. has been engaged as teacher for the Gleichen school for the next term, vice Miss Wilson who resigned.

Quite a number of Exhibition prizes are on exhibition in the store window of T. H. Beach's harness shop. They are certainly well worth competing for.

G. W. Savage, of the well-known Calgary whole-sale firm of Plunkett & Savage, spent a couple of day this week visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Larkin.

Gleichen Lodge A. F. & A. M. held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening last. A Chapter of Royal Arch Masons will shortly be instituted here.

Chris. Bertsch asks that no shooting will be done on the south east of town, owing to the horses and cattle in his pasture and domestic ducks on the lake.

A large number of ducks fell to the guns of the local sports on opening day. It is said that some were not particular as to whether the ducks at which they aimed were wild or tame, and some of our citizen's flocks suffered in consequence.

The garden fete held by the W. A. of St. Andrew's church on the grounds of Mrs. James Monkman this evening was a grand success, as is indeed everything which these ladies take in hand. Those present thoroughly enjoyed themselves and the funds of the auxiliary were augmented by a good ly sum.

Don't forget the ball in the Opera House tomorrow, Friday evening. If you have not already secured your ticket do so at once as it promises to be the best of the season. Good music the best of floors and tempting refreshments will go to make up a successful evening. Tickets at any of the Gleichen stores

Mr Pretter, superintendent of the C.P.R. Forestry department, spent Saturday and Sunday in Gleichen, during which time examined the park here and the Cluny nursery. He was accompanied by Mr. Sweeney his assistant, and both gentlemen expressed themselves as greatly pleased with their inspection, stating that the park and nursery here was the finest they had visited in the west.

E. Urch, of Boston, but who has been a resident of the vicinity of Kensington for some months past, was keeping sentinel over a choice pair of silver foxes he had in the eastern train on the latter suffered for the best Tuesday evening. The animals were bunched from Mr. Silas Raynor of Carnagnes and the money paid down for them reached near the $10,000 mark. They are to be kept in the ranch of Mr. Bradford McArthur, Kensington—Kensington, P.E.I. Pioneer.

Annual Exhibition, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 30th and 31st.

Gleichen's Fifth Annual Exhibition will be held to-morrow and Saturday and every citizen of the town and district should be present to aid in making this Exhibition an even greater success than those of former years.

Good prizes are offered in the various departments, while the entries received for the races promise good fields of horses and interesting contests. It is said that additional interest will be added to the afternoon's sport by the presence and participation of several of the cowboys and cowgirls now in Calgary for the Stampede, while the Indians may be expected to "whoop her up" in their races.

The Ladies Association have been taking particular care to see that nothing is wanting in the decorations of the building and also that the parade with band on Saturday morning, for which quite a number of floats are being prepared, is a success. Victory is secured, and the results will have the admiration and appreciation of those who attend. The ladies have also secured the services of a brass band from Calgary, and to meet the expenses incurred are putting on a ball in the Opera House tomorrow, Friday evening, and as these ladies are always first in any work for the advancement of their town and district, we bespeak for them a liberal patronage. We can assure those who attend that they will have a thoroughly enjoyable evening in every respect. Tickets may be obtained at any of the Gleichen stores.

In many of the classes, the judges will have their hands full to decide which of the exhibits shall be placed first, and having partaken of the products of the culinary art of the ladies of Gleichen, we do not envy the judge the task of deciding which is best where all is so good, and the display in this department will awake in the breast of many a backelor housekeeper the desire to have some one at home to prepare like delicacies for his consumption.

The boys and girls are not only showing their wish to make the exhibition a success, but also their desire to improve themselves in the various branches embraced by the Educational Department.

The merry-go-round and fifteen other attractions have arrived and been placed in position, and those who wish to mix the amusing and instructive will have a splendid opportunity of doing so.

Up to Wednesday morning, over six hundred entries had been received and they were just beginning to come in. In fact every department is every branch promises to be a huge success, and we advise any one who can possibly attend to do so. Any information that is desired can be obtained from J. T. Johnston who will be found on the grounds any time after 8 a.m. on Friday morning.

Duke of Connaught Will Arrive in Gleichen at 10 A.M. Saturday, September 7th

When their Royal Highnesses, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia and the distinguished guests that will accompany them on their special train from the west to Gleichen and the fifty-five British capitalists arrive in Gleichen on Saturday, September 7th, they will be treated to a banquet in Gleichen that for originality and good taste has never been excelled in the great last best west.

They come to Gleichen to witness the formal opening of the great Southern Alberta Land Co., irrigation canal south of Gleichen, upon which nearly four millions of dollars have been expended.

Though but a short notice has been given E. W. Kolb, superintendent of the C.P.R. dining car department has demonstrated the thoroughness of the organization of his branch of the service by completing not only the plans for serving the distinguished guests, but the menu as well.

While as elaborate as most banquets served to His Royal Highness the event will be distinguished by the fact that every viand on the menu save three will brought from the soil and waters of Canada.

The banquet will be served by a corps of 40 men, and will be prepared by the travelling instructive chef of the C. P. R. assisted by two of the most capable chefs in the service.

From the sunny slopes of Spain will come luscious olives and from the tropics, mangoes; from the fertile gardens of the Bow Valley crisp lettuce, radishes and other vegetables, most of which will be recruited from the C. P. R. experimental farms, from our great west, famed for its potatoes will come big tubers, which under the magic hand of the skilled chefs of the C. P. R. will be transformed into resistless gems of epicurean excellence, each decorated with a Canadian flag.

Special attention will be given to the artistic features of the dishes served. By special process of preparing potatoes, they will be removed from their jackets after baking, minced and replaced, the whole thus being pressed into perfect shape to resemble the original potato.

All meats will be served chilled in jelly, under which may be mentioned that wild boar's head from India has been in pickle for more than two weeks.

From British Columbia will come five of the largest salmon that can be caught on the day previous to shipment.

Cakes will be supplied moulded after the Alberta coat of arms, and the Canadian coat of arms.

While a goodly supply of the small fruits will be from Alberta, British Columbia will be most generously represented, and the ice cream will be moulded into the shape of a maple leaf.

The table will be strewn with water scent viands and will zig-zag from the Duke's plate around the full table of 85 feet.

W. Whitfield already has the superstructure of the canopy nearly completed, which is to cover the frame forming the banquet hall south of the S. S. W. & P. barracks.

Special arrangements will be made to serve evening dinners for the royal party and their friends, who are to be guarded by twenty members of the R.N.W.M.P.

In anticipation of a scarcity automobiles, due to the Stampede, it has been arranged to have a supply furnished from Medicine Hat and Gleichen, here 30 cars will be waiting to take the ducal party over the irrigation project.

Sir Frederick Benson, who has been the advance guard of the ducal party, will return to Gleichen Thursday morning to superintend the final arrangements.

The Duke is to arrive in Gleichen at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, and shortly after the procession will leave the encampment, pass up Crowfoot Street, cross south of the depot, and proceed to the canal, returning between 2 and 3 o'clock that afternoon when the banquet will will be in readiness, after which the two special trains will leave for the west.

Among those present will be:

Rt. Hon. Earl Stanhope, late captain Grenadier Guards, member of the London county council and associated with many imperial institutions.

On the Job

In a quiet little country town, so quiet that the silence hurt, a commercial traveler entered the general store. Going through to the parlor at the back he found in the proprietor and a friend having a game of checkers.

Here, Mr. Slocum, he said in an energetic whisper, there are two customers in the shop.

Slocum never raised his eyes from the board. He merely shook his head and whispered in reply—

That's all right. Keep quiet and they'll go away again.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Milkeape

One great mistake made by many of the parents who object to training young girls is the notion that discipline connotes harshness. It need do nothing of the kind.

How did you bring your sons up to be so obedient and dutiful? we said. They defer to you in everything, and yet there isn't a bit of the milksop about them, and they are not a bit afraid of you. You seem to be such friends, and yet I have heard you say you have strong ideas about obedience. How did you manage it?

I made them obey absolutely; I was strict in my determination to have it be entirely just, and I loved them to death, was the answer.

So long as your children are persuaded that devoted love is the cause and accompaniment of the discipline you need not be afraid that they will suffer from you, if you make the justice one of the foundations of your training.

Begin with your tiny baby and, as you drill him in regular habits of eating and sleeping, accustom him to the method of obedience. When the time comes—as it may—when you will attempt a small revolt, don't give way, but hold your own. Avoid issues as much as possible, but when they come meet them squarely.

A Sea Sandstorm

With its decks covered with an inch or more of sand, and the officers and crew looking as if they had returned from a desert trip, the schooner Alvena, twenty-seven days from Columbia River, in command of Captain Abrahamsen, arrived at San Diego, Cal. recently. While the vessel was coming along under a light wind seventy-five miles off shore, and 125 miles north of San Diego, it became enveloped in a cloud of fine sand. The sea was smooth and the wind from the southeast. The dust seemed to drop from the sky.

This condition prevailed for two days, according to the crew, and not until Point Loma was sighted did they get out of the dust. From that time until the schooner got into port the crew was busy sweeping the accumulated sand off the lumber cargo and decks, and getting the fine particles of grit out of their eyes and hair.—McCall's Magazine.

HIGH CLASS SEED

Unsanitary Handling of Grain Mainly Responsible for Deteriorated Seed

In a young country like Canada where the soil is new and generally very fertile it may often be puzzling to account for crop diseases when it must inevitably bring failure. In order to improve the deteriorating quality of grain seeds, successful results can only be arrived at by taking certain steps of farm procedure. Experiments have shown that the cause for deteriorated seed does not lie in lost fertility, but from unsanitary handling.

Great care should be taken to see that a pure variety of seed is selected. On no account should a mixture be used. Each crop carries with it its own diseases, and if these are not weeded out, the ground becomes full of the spores of the disease, with the result that the soil loses it ability to produce a crop. A crop rotation counteracts this to a large extent, and is therefore absolutely necessary.

Of first importance, however, is the fact that no matter how fertile the soil, the quality of the grain cannot be improved unless weed seeds, and light weight stuff, including dirt, dust straw, and chaff are weeded out of it. Very often good seed, spoiled by getting wet in the stack or in the bin is undoubtedly injured and where a good crop has resulted it is only by working on new land or clean summer fallow land, free from disease.

According to H. L. Bolley, botanist the essential steps to get clean seed are—Raise your own seed; harvest the seed when mature; thresh it as soon as dry; store the seed dry; grade out of it all weed seeds; and always use a pure variety of seed. Where these steps are followed the seed will each year become more and more resistant until eventually you have a seed that is practically disease resistant for the land.—Winnipeg Telegram.

The Mukden Cemetery

A recent traveler through Manchuria gives us a picture and description of the great cemetery which the Japanese have nearly completed and which some time ago they consecrated to the Russian dead who fell in the battles about Mukden, in their precipitate retreat the armies of the Czar left thousands upon thousands of their fallen comrades unburied. After the signing of the treaty of peace the soldiers of the Mikado collected every last bone and every bit of regalia and every rusty gun or weapon which the Russians had left upon the field, and buried them with solemnity honors in the center of this vast plot they enclosed by a white marble fencing a game of checkers. Here, Mr. Slocum, he said in an energetic whisper, there are two customers in the shop.

Slocum never raised his eyes from the board. He merely shook his head and whispered in reply—

That's all right. Keep quiet and they'll go away again.

DRY FARMING CONGRESS

The Annual Convention to be Held at Lethbridge This Year, Attracting Attention

Dry-Farming means better farming according to the official call of the International Dry-Farming Congress, the annual convention of the dry-land farmers of the world, which meets October 19-26 next at Lethbridge, in Southern Alberta, in the heart of one of the greatest grain belts. The definition of the term "dry-farming," which is coming into such general use in everywhere and of which thousands have never learned the essentials, is the most interesting, and, furthermore, it is logical, and the adaptation of the precepts has brought reward to those farmers who have looked to science to aid them in the misfortune and hard luck through unfavorable weather conditions pursued their neighbors who farmed as their fathers and grandfathers did before them.

Every civilized country in the world is now studying the tillage and cropping methods used by the International Dry-Farming Congress, and its monthly scientific bulletins and reports go to the four corners of the earth. Its corps of instructors is the world wide, and its next convention promises to be attended by agriculturists from some 50 nations and official delegations from some 30 with additional thousands of United States and Canada, upholding the great agricultural interests of the North American continent.

Dry-Farming, says the call, is a scientific term used by colleges and authors to differentiate between the new system of agriculture and the methods practiced in the rain belts and irrigation districts. A special system of tillage of the soil for the purpose of moisture and fertility conservation is known to be necessary where at least 40 per cent of the agriculture acreage of the world, and the Dry-Farming Congress was brought into existence for the purpose of working out these problems and remedies for the troubles confronting farmers of the sub-humid districts, or those having from 15 to 20 inches of drouths or failing soils. Dry-Farming is the "conservation of any kind." Any farmer on any soil and in any climate who increases production, crop quality and bank account.

Dry-Farming methods can be utilized with profit by farmers in every district of the world. The sectional conventions of the great Congress will be in charge of the following prominent men:

Crops and Tillage—Chairman, Prof. Alfred Atkinson, Montana; Agricultural College, Bozeman, Montana; Secretary, Prof. D. Farrell, Bursau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

Scientific Research — Chairman, Prof. R. H. Stevenson, Director Washington State Agricultural Colleges Experiment Station, Pullman, Washington; Secretary, Prof. F. J. Alway, Nebraska Agricultural College, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations—International Conference—President, Dr. Charles A. Lory, President Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colorado; Secretary, Prof. E. A. Burnett, Dean Nebraska Agricultural College, Lincoln, Neb.

Rural Home-International Congress of Farm Women—President, Mrs. Byrtha L. Stavart, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Secretary, Mrs. Eleanor L. Burns, Lethbridge, Alta.

Tardy Honors for Lady Hamilton

An extraordinary proposal has been made, apparently in good faith, to exhume the remains of Emma, Lady Hamilton, from her grave in Calais and transport them to Westminster Abbey. The argument is that Nelson bequeathed her to the country, and sentimentalists think that some amends for letting her die in poverty may be made by burying her nearly a century later in the "national Valhalla."

It is argued that it was only through her influence that Nelson went to see again and so fought and won his greatest victory at Trafalgar. He had formed a desire to settle down in a country life, but Lady Hamilton persuaded him to make one more cruise in the service of his country.

Those who oppose the transfer suggest that sentiment is a bad motive, but a desire for a little more timeliness in the matter, although it is true she ran through a property of $2,000 a year in Naples, was not exactly starving when she died, as she was in the enjoyment of an annuity of $500 settled upon her by her daughter Horatia.

What do you think of this scheme of having the countries exchange children?

What's the idea?

An English family, for instance, exchanges children for a couple of years with a German family. Thus both sets of children get a chance to learn another language. References are exchanged and all that sort of thing.

It's an elegant scheme. My neighbor has one child, and I would like to see exchanged with some family in Siberia.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to little ones. The complaints of the stomach, such as cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is really ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to the mother during the heated term as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach and are guaranteed to cure. They are sold by dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Royal Relics

Notwithstanding the efforts of Napoleon to keep track of royal relics, such things turn up in odd places from time to time. An advance the silk stockings which Queen Victoria is said to have worn on her wedding day and a piece of orange blossom from her bridal bouquet were among a number of relics that are fresh to-day sold a day or two ago at the Manor House, Kingsbury, near Hendon gate. They fetched $77. They were found in a bijou table which contained, in addition to the wax cake of King Edward and King Alexander, a wedding cake, a pair of pair of shoes once worn by Pauline Bonaparte, sister of the great Napoleon.

The services of the ushers or announcers now employed in large railroad stations for the purpose of keeping crowds moving and directing movements are threatened by the invention of a device automatically by which these announcements are made by a single person, but conveyed to different parts of the station simultaneously. The announcement coming from a single source will be a large hall, such as most waiting rooms afford, will be heard with much more satisfactory manner than by the ushers; as the confusing echoes of a direct announcement is avoided.

WELL PEOPLE TOO

Wise Doctor Gives Opium to Convalescents.

A wise doctor tries to give nature its best chance by saving the little strength it has. A nearly exhausted patient, and building up wasted energy with simple but powerful nourishment.

"Five years ago," writes a doctor, "I recommended Bovril to many of my own family instead of coffee." (It's a well-known fact that coffee is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee). "I have had no complaint with the results that I had two grocers place it in stock, recommending it for sale.

"I then commenced to recommend it to my patients in place of coffee, as a nutritious beverage. The consequence is that I have now in front of me selling it as it has become a house hold necessity with many homes.

"I'm sure I prescribe Postum as often as any one remedy in the Materia Medica—for every one of ill-digestion and nervousness I've had to treat, and with the best results.

When I once introduce it into a family it seems to remain. I shall continue to use it and prescribe it to families where I practice.

"In convalescence from pneumonia, typhoid fever and other cases I give it as a liquid, easily absorbed diet. You may use my letter as a reference in any way you see fit." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

What a Rat Will Do

Almost unbelievable are some of the things done by the rat, the squealing, filthy gluttonous, all-pervading and ultra-destroying brown rat. Rats often gnaw the hoofs of horses until the blood comes. They have been known to attack fat hogs and eat holes in their bodies, causing death. They will fight human beings if cornered. They often steal valuable articles to carry them to their building nests.

The following were found in a single nest: Three bedroom towels, two overlettes, five dust cloths, two pairs of linen sheets, three silk veils, pocket handkerchiefs, and one silk handkerchief. This rat, which was a model of industry and thrift, had carried away and stored away 12½ lbs of sugar, a pudding, a stalk of celery, a beet, carrots, turnips and potatoes.

In the last dozen years over 5,000,000 human beings have died of plague in India alone. The Indian Plague Commission, after careful enquiry, found the bubonic plague in rats is entirely dependent on the disease of the rat.

Marvelous in its destructiveness is the common European rat, closely related to the rat. The field-mouse, too, is highly destructive, the most destructive of all the rodents.

The cheapness of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator brings it within reach of all, and it can be got at any druggist's.

Save One for Her

Edith was light-hearted and merry over everything. Nothing appealed to her seriously. So one day her mother decided to have a very serious young person to dinner, and he was placed next to the light-hearted girl. Everything went well until she asked him—

You speak of everybody having a mission. What is yours?

My mission, said the person, is to save young men.

Good, replied the girl, I'm glad to meet you. I wish you'd save one for me.

This is to certify that I have used MINARD'S Liniment in my family for years and consider it the best liniment in the market. I have found it excellent for horse flesh.

The Psychology of Italics

Doctors of style in the writing of English maintain that the best method for emphasis is a positive fault showing weakness of construction and inability to express ideas strongly by a right arrangement of words. Nevertheless, italics are used deliberately by some forceful writers to gain added force and to fasten the eye and the mind of the reader upon important words in any sentence as a means to strengthen his oration by vocal emphasis and gesture. Whatever may be said for or against the use of italics they certainly reveal the writer's estimate of relative importance in the things he has written. He has chosen the exact phrases, and has given them special prominence. As we note their significance we begin to understand the full force of the words. His choice of emphasis is the key to meaning in his mind. His italics are either an index of his mental or moral characteristics.

We are all writing history day by day. On every page some things are italics, and others are stated boldly in italics. Take up the book of a high and low life and read it to-day. It will be an interesting record—perhaps a startling one. Doubtless we shall find ourselves unconsciously recting the proof when we find where the italics are set.—Christian Herald.

Size of Future Ships

Sir William White, a leading naval architect, declared recently that the facts that tend to limit the increase in the size of ships are chiefly commercial. Large ships cost more to build than small ones, and are more expensive to operate. Moreover they are not so sure of reaching their destination with their cargo without delay. In addition, harbors and the few harbor possess a channels of sufficient depth or docks large enough to accommodate the largest ships are few and far between. Sir William believes that although large ships will continue to ply between a few favored ports for special services, and even larger ones may be built, the great bulk of ocean traffic will continue to be carried by vessels of moderate size.

Fitting the Case

With a face that vainly endeavored to appear mournful, and a gown that vainly strove to produce a respectable air of grief, Patricia Casey O'Dolan strolled into a dry goods store.

I want yez best mourning that's got, whoiled she customs is for th' wearin' iv mournin'?

Well, asked the assistant, of course it varies. If it's a very dear relative you should wear black clothes; if it's a less near relative, a band of black on the sleeve or hat; or, if it's a friend, just a black tie.

For some moments Patrick Murphy O'Dolan considered.

Well, he whispered at length, give me a shoe lace. It's my wife's mother.—Exchange.

Geo. Ham's Laundry

T story is told of a party of eastern manufacturers who were making a trip through the Canadian Northwest. The train was running about three hours late and it was essential that they reach a certain point A— on time to make train connections without delay. As they proceeded however, the train lost more time and the easterners began to get nervous. They hunted up the conductor and had him interview the crew, but there was no gain in speed. At a stopping point they interviewed the crew personally and threatened to confront the engineer and conductor but when told a note to the effect that George Ham's laundry was on board and that the train must make both ends on time to deliver it to him. This hint of George Ham's laundry being on board was sufficient. The train began to gain time and that afternoon it seemed like A— three minutes ahead of time.

CALL FOR HARVESTERS

PRAIRIE PROVINCES ARE CRYING OUT FOR MORE HELP

It is Greatly Feared That the Supply of Men from the East will not Meet the Demand for Labor Required to Garner the Big Western Crop This Year

Winnipeg.—The men are not arriving in sufficient numbers, and more help is urgently needed throughout the west, said a prominent C.P.R. officer when discussing the movement of the harvest hands from the east to the prairie provinces.

The first excursion which we ran from the maritime provinces, he continued, was heavier than last year, but the second from eastern Ontario was rather disappointing. The result has been that the number that has arrived already is about 7,000, which is approximately the same as last year.

When the conference between the provincial government and the railway company was held a few weeks ago, the former estimated their requirements at 57,000, and decided to advertise for that number in the east. It was not expected that the amount would be obtained, but at least 35,000 was hoped for.

Already Saskatchewan has received 4,000 of those who have passed through, while the balance have either remained in Manitoba or gone through to Alberta. Unfortunately quite a large percentage of those who have taken advantage of the excursions have no intention of working in the harvest fields, but have merely come west for divers reasons of their own.

Contrary to the expectation of many there has only been one complaint against the increased rate of half a cent a mile to points west of Winnipeg. The men have known what to expect on their arrival here, and they have come in with their minds made up as to where they intend going. Between them they represent a considerable sum of money. Many of them possess wads composed of hundreds of dollars and very few have barely sufficient to carry them to their journey's end.

In addition to the genuine harvesters, the majority of these immigrants who have arrived in the city during the past two weeks have been ticketed out to districts where it has been known that they could immediately obtain employment in the harvest fields. The provincial government representatives say that they have sent out quite a large number of newly-arrived trans-ocean passengers. The fact that they have had little or no experience makes no difference because the farmers are willing to take them so long as they will get out and work. Most of them have been induced to go by the high wages. They have been accustomed to working in England for about $4 per week, and when they can get from $2 to $3 a day they think their fortune is made. It was stated that the west would benefit greatly from the rush of harvesters as in the past it had been equal for at least one-third of the number to remain permanently in the prairie provinces.

Conditions in the West

Ottawa.—R. S. Lake, of the Public Service Commission, who has been making a tour of the West, has been probing into the question of the high cost of living and the salaries of post office and other officials.

Post office employees now get an allowance for the higher cost of living in the West, but they claim it is not sufficient and are asking for an increase.

A number of petitions have recently been received by the Government and Mr. Lake is making an investigation and will report to the Government.

Investigate Sheep Industry

Ottawa.—Col. McRae and Col. McEwen, the well known sheep authorities who have been investigating for the Government the opportunities for encouraging the sheep industry, have completed their inquiries.

Col. McRae has been investigating particularly in British Columbia and Col. McEwen in the Maritime Provinces.

They will meet in the Capital on Friday and will draw up their recommendations and their report for the Minister of Agriculture.

HIGH COST OF LIVING INQUIRY

R. H. Coats to Represent Canada at Washington Conference

Ottawa.—It is probable that Mr. R. H. Coats, of the Labor Department, will represent Canada at the conference to be held in Washington in October on the projected world-wide investigation of the high cost of living.

The Government some time ago was asked to be represented in the inquiry, which would be wide in its scope and international in character.

TO CELEBRATE CANAL OPENING

Foreign Office Notifies United States That Great Britain Will Participate

London.—Rumors that Great Britain might not take part in the Panama exposition on account of dissatisfaction with the canal bill were disposed of when the United States embassy here received official notification from the foreign office of the participation of England in the 1915 exposition. The extent of the participation of England in the 1915 exposition is not stated, as the allotment of space for the various countries has not yet been made. The feeling here is that any disagreement over the action of the United States as to canal tolls will be amicably adjusted before the time of the exposition.

Premier Sails on August 30

London.—Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden who came to London in July to discuss Canada's naval policy and the Panama canal question, will leave England for Canada August 30. The premier does not expect that anything will be done by the Canadian government regarding the Panama Canal bill until after his return to Ottawa, and after the measure has been finally ratified by the American congress.

TAXPAYERS BILL HEAVY

Dominant Party Fights Shy of National Insurances Involving Personal Contributions

Melbourne. — The announcement by the federal Labor government of the details of its maternity grant scheme—or "baby bonus," as it is termed—has set Australia discussing the limits of social subsidies from a new standpoint.

The popularity of the plan under which every needy mother is to receive $25 on the registration of a newly born child is undoubted.

It is fiercely denounced by Fusion politicians as a low-down bribe to the women and as a kind of set-off to the Labor party's abolition of postal voting. But thoughtful Liberal leaders like Mr. Deakin do not take this line; they recognize the justice of some aid at the maternity period of the life of a woman whose husband is so poor as to be unable to give her essential comforts. It is an open secret that long before the Labor ministry's announcement several leading Liberals were quietly feeling their way toward a workable scheme.

Liberal Alternative

As it is, at least one Liberal organization has made public its ideas concerning an alternative. Only this week at the second annual conference of the Tasmanian Liberal League at which 120 delegates were present, it was unanimously agreed that a state fund be established for the relief of poor widows left with young children. Gradually the principle of state aid is being conceded, and the discussion is converging on safeguards from fraud and questions of thrift contributions, and, above all, of cost.

The Australian taxpayer is alarmed at the prospective cost of the fulfillment of Labor's dreams. The Labor party has turned its back on the German and Lloyd George social insurance systems because they involve personal contributions. All its own schemes are free doles from the treasury—extensions of the invalid and old age pension systems. Public men outside the Labor ranks are, therefore, vigorously sounding a warning note. A few days ago, stepping straight from the state into the federal arena, the new premier of Victoria, Mr. Watt, delivered a speech in which this note rang from end to end of a vigorous deliverance.

Heavy Bill for Taxpayers

Mr. Watt's theme centered in a remarkable calculation of the financial effects of the "grants system," as supplied to the pockets of the 1,940,000 bread-winners of Australia. His calculation was based on very low charges for the keeping and feeding of children, and was not extravagant in other details. Yet, when he had finished, the "grants system" produced a bill of nearly $85,000,000 a year for the taxpayer to pay—and this without the "baby bonus."

The widespread circulation of these figures is having a marked influence on electors, and unless they can be broken down by detailed analysis, they will have a material effect on the next federal elections, when the Labor party will ask for a further lease of power.

Liberals will meet the situation with an adaptation to Australian conditions of the imperial parliament's great insurance act.

FOR MEANS OF IDENTIFICATION

Government Now Require Contractors to Keep Record of all Men

Ottawa.—A circular has been issued recently by the Department of Labor and sent to various railroad contractors on Government work.

The circular contains certain regulations to protect men employed on such work, and it requires that all contractors, sub-contractors and other employers of labor shall keep a complete record of names, nationalities, place of birth and latest address in Canada, together with home address and name and local address of nearest relatives, of employees.

In the past such record has not been kept, and as a result many foreign laborers, with families at home in case of death by explosions or other accidents, have been buried unidentified.

Inquiry from waiting relatives at home in many cases has been futile. Under the new regulations the names and addresses, etc., will be forwarded to the Department of Labor for reference in case of death.

EMPEROR REWARDS AVIATOR

Gives Him $5,000 in Order to Enable Him to Wed

Vienna.—The Austrain emperor has presented Lieutenant von Blaschke, the military aviator, with $5,000, in order to enable him to marry the woman of his choice. Lieutenant von Blaschke, who recently made a world's record by ascending over 13,000 feet with a passenger in his aeroplane, has been engaged to a Fraulein von Csakay for some time, but she did not possess the $12,500 dowry necessary under the regulation for an Austrian lieutenant's bride.

The lieutenant has, however, recently made $7,500 himself toward this sum from prizes in flying competitions, and in recognition of his brilliant flights, the emperor has now given him the balance out of his private purse.

New Dominion $5.00 Popular

Ottawa.—The new five dollar Dominion banknotes are proving quite popular.

Already eight million dollars have been put in circulation. Canadians however, are not taking much to gold and the circulation of the present gold coinage is not nearly as brisk as was expected.

The principal demand seems to come from British Columbia. The Eastern provinces have thus far used very little of it, and that, it is understood is chiefly for souvenirs and curiosity.

Esperanto's Silver Jubilee

NEW S. A. COMMANDER

BRAMWELL BOOTH IS CHOSEN TO SUCCEED HIS FATHER

The Late General Appointed his Son to Succeed him as Head of the Salvation Army—King George and Many Notables send Messages of Condolence.

London.—In the presence of all the Salvation Army commissioners and the principal officers in London at the international headquarters on Queen Victoria Street, General Booth's testament, entrusted to the army's solicitor twenty-two years ago, appointing the late commander-in-chief's son, Bramwell Booth, to succeed him, was opened and read.

Bramwell Booth, who has been chief of the staff of the Salvation Army since 1880, accepted the succession with much feeling. Following his speech was a prayer and the scriptural reading was followed by an impressive service. Mrs. Bramwell Booth and Mrs. Booth-Helberd, and other well known army leaders, were among the participants.

General Booth's funeral will be held on the afternoon of August 29 at Abney Park Cemetery, in Stoke, Newington, where his wife was buried. The funeral procession from the international headquarters, which will pass through some of the principal thoroughfares of the city, will start at noon. Many thousands of persons are expected to participate in the funeral service for the army, which will be held on the preceding night at the great hall of Olympia, the scene of the international horse show and various pageants and exhibitions, which has been chosen for its spaciousness.

Several newspapers suggested that the general's work entitled him to lie in Westminster Abbey or St. Paul's Cathedral where many other of the nation's greatest heroes of war and peace are entombed, but his wish was to be buried beside the remains of his wife, and it is doubtful if the church authorities will make the offer to place the body in the cathedral.

Bramwell Booth presided at the meeting held in the international headquarters. After calling on Commissioner McKie for a prayer, the chief of the staff announced that he had called the officers together to hear the reading of the documents appointing General Booth's successor. The army solicitor produced a large sealed envelope, which had lain in his safe just twenty-two years to a day.

It bore in the general's handwriting:

"The appointment of my successor, William Booth, 21st August, 1890."

After the envelope was passed around the circle of officers, Solicitor Ranger cut it open and read the formal appointment of the chief of the staff as commander-in-chief. The solicitor then formally asked Bramwell Booth if he accepted the post. The chief of the staff replied with deep emotion, accepting the appointment and expressing his keen sense of the great loss that the army had sustained and added his resolution to carry out faithfully the new responsibilities cast upon him.

King George was one of the first to telegraph his condolences to the bereaved family. Messages also were received from Premier Asquith the Archbishop of Canterbury and other prelates of the Church of England, the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Thomas B. Crosby, the Earl of Meath and the Earl of Aberdeen and many others, including representatives of the Protestant creeds and prominent persons of the Jewish faith.

DEMONSTRATION FARMS IN WEST

Three in Manitoba and Two Each in Alberta and Saskatchewan

Winnipeg.—F. C. Nunnick, B.S.A., of the commission of conservation, Ottawa, arrived here after an important tour of the Dominion from east to west, in which he has been engaged in locating thirty demonstration farms. The commissioner set out in March, visiting Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Seven farms have been selected in the prairie provinces—three in Manitoba, and two each in Alberta and Saskatchewan. For the moment no farm will be arranged for in British Columbia, where the problem presented is one of some difficulty, owing to the absence of extensive areas and of general mixed farming.

The three farms selected in Manitoba are those of Jarvis Jickling, Morden; Jos. Lyons, Carberry; and Chas Peny, Hamiota. In Saskatchewan one farm will be that of Dr. Lang, at Indian Head, and there will be another near Saskatoon, the selection of this being for the moment in abeyance. In Alberta, G. H. Jaurnick's farm at Stavely, and Jos. Sutherland's at Namao, twelve miles north of Edmonton, have been selected.

CHINESE TROUBLE NOT OVER

People of South Are Now Considering Forming Separate Republics

Hong Kong.—Several British torpedo boats have been dispatched from this port to endeavor to find and attack the pirates who, on Monday night raided the British island of Cheung Chow, where they killed three Indian policemen and looted many of the houses.

Reports have reached here from the southern provinces of China stating that there is much excitement in connection with the execution of General Chang Chen Wu and General Feng Wei, members of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's party. It is said that the people of the south consider the sole solution of the present crisis is the formation of separate southern and northern republics.

BIG REVENUE FROM CHARTERS

Receipts of Department Will Reach a Record Amount This Year

Ottawa.—The tremendous and unprecedented commercial and industrial growth of the Dominion during the past few years is eloquently portrayed in statistics secured today, which show that the revenue of the department of the Secretary of State for four months of the fiscal year is not only more than double of that for the corresponding period last year but equal to the whole 12 months receipts three years ago.

It is expepcted that the revenue of the department, which is derived from the tariff of fees payable for charters, will be close around $350,000 which is a record amount.

BOER SETTLERS FOR CANADA

Montreal.—E. G. Rykert, a local financier, who has just returned from a business trip to Europe, stated this morning that during his tour he had made preliminary arrangements for bringing a large number of Boer settlers from the Transvaal to take up land in the Peace River District of Canada. Mr. Rykert, during his visit put through the formation of a large syndicate for the buying of 800,000 acres of Peace River lands. A large amount of Dutch capital was secured for this proposition.

THE MARKET REPORT

Weekly Grain Letter Supplied by Thompson, Sons & Co., Grain Merchants, Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, August 14.—There has not been much change in the wheat markets during the past week but a steadier feeling prevails. In the last two months there has been a decline in the price of the future deliveries in the American speculative markets of from 10c. to 14c. per bushel, but there has been no such decline in the price of wheat for immediate delivery, cash wheat as it is called. In fact in some markets cash wheat prices are fully as high as they were two months ago, and the demand for cash wheat is unusually good considering the time of the year, for the first of the 1912 crop is just beginning to come on the markets. From the beginning of July up to the present time the weather over the American continent has been generally very favorable for the seasonable growth and maturing of the grain crops. In the United States the harvesting of the winter wheat made good progress with practically no interruption by unfavorable weather, and although the yield in the soft winter wheat states tributary to the Chicago market is very light owing to the severe winter killing of the crop in these states, the hard winter wheat crop in Kansas, etc., is turning out a large yield. Then in the spring wheat states the crop has advanced to harvest, with practically no damage to it and the yield is going to be one of the best on record. The crop situation in the United States seems so favorable that the August report of the Agricultural Department at Washington, indicates a probable yield of 390,000,000 bus. of winter wheat and 290,000,000 bus. of spring wheat, together 680,000,000 bus. with average quality much higher than usual, against 621,000,000 bus. the final estimate for the United States crop of 1911. Some authorities consider the Government estimate too low and that total yield will turn out over 700,000,000 bus. The American speculators also see a large crop coming along in our Canadian West, the yield of which is put at not under 200,000,000 bus. With these possibilities of yield they have decided apparently that wheat prices for the future deliveries would go to a markedly lower level, and consequently there has been a campaign of short selling which has borne down prices for the September, December and May futures to an extent probably not warranted by the general situation, or by the prospect for the size of this year's world's wheat production compared with world's requirements, but speculative movements usually go to extremes. While we cannot expect old crop prices to continue into the new crop movement, it is not unlikely that when the new crop moves in volume, cash prices for it will be higher than the present speculative prices for the future deliveries. The course of the market will, however, be very much influenced by the reports of the progress of harvesting in Europe and America. In the last three weeks the weather in western Europe has been unseasonably wet and harvesting and threshing is delayed and a good deal of damage to quality by rain and wind has resulted; this applies especially to Germany, France and England. The crop over Europe with the exception of Russia, is going to be smaller than last year's, with a good deal of inferior quality. In America the spring wheat in the United States is getting nearly out of danger with the exception of the north half of North Dakota, but in Western Canada large damage could be done yet by unfavorable weather, the same as happened last year during the last half of August and September. We incline, however, to look for a favorable harvest season this year. The weather since August came in has not seemed quite favorable, being more showery than needed and lacks sunshine, but temperature has not been unfavorable and grain must be filling well. Some early patches have already been cut and if weather keeps dry every passing day will see other farmers making a start and in ten or twelve days cutting would be general. Popular opinion has as usual been putting the prospective yield of the three provinces very high but expert authorities who have been over a good deal of country, put the maximum yield at not larger than last year's say 180,000,000 bus., but with the prospect of a large average of good milling wheat. We are liable to have that touch of light frost that often comes in August and does damage in some localities, but if we get through to September without any frost we seem pretty safe to secure a fairly large crop of high average quality, a totally different crop from last year's unfortunate production, the like of which we never had before.

Our Winnipeg market has had a quiet trade in future deliveries on the option market and option prices closed today ¼c. to ¼c. higher that a week ago. The demand, however, for cash wheat has been excellent and prices for most grades are ½c. to 1c. higher, the only exception being No. 1 Northern which is 1c. lower. The movement from the country is now very moderate and looks as if the old crop was cleaned out. To-day's cash prices are No. 1 Nor., 106c; 2 Nor., 103¾c.; 3 Nor., 101c.; No. 4 wheat 86½c; No. 5, 69¼c; No. 6, 59¼c. Feed, 56c; No. 3 Alberta Red Winter, 97c; No. 4 A.R., 87½c. Futures closed October 91⅞c; December 88¾c.

Oats—

There has been an increased demand for oats during the week and prices have advanced 2c. for cash oats and 1c on the October delivery. The movement from the country is now much smaller than it was a year ago and the stocks at terminal elevators moderate. Any delay by unfavorable weather in getting the new western crop ready for market would advance prices sharply. To-day's prices are No. 2 C.W., 38c.; 3 C. W., 37c; Ex. 1 Fd. 38c; 1 Fd. 36½c; 2 Feed, 33½c. The October option closed today 34½c.

Barley—

There is nothing doing in barley and prices are not quoted.

Flax—

The Flax market is quiet but demand shows improvement and prices have advanced 1c. to 4c. on the week for the cash article but the October delivery is 1c. lower. We quote No. 1 N.W. 170c; 1 Man., 168c; Rejected, 159c. October closed at 157c.

Prices quoted are on basis of in store Fort William, Port Arthur and Duluth.

GETTING BIG SUPPLY OF COAL

Efforts Being Made to Avoid Any Shortage of Fuel This Winter

Port Arthur.—If there is any coal shortage in the west this coming season it will not be the result of any slackening of efforts on the part of the officials in charge of the C.N.R. Coal and Ore Dock Company at Port Arthur, though it may to a certain extent be charged to their failure to keep pace in adding to the capacity of their plants in conformity with the enormous increase in the population and consequent demand of the west. The plant at Port Arthur has, with the exception of a strike of less than a week, been operating with full capacity all season. This will continue until the end of navigation. There are generally three boats at the dock either unloading or waiting to be unloaded of their cargo from the Pennsylvania coal fields, the coal then being shipped west as far as the railway companies can handle it. The proportion of their requirements the people of the west can look to Port Arthur for can be estimated on a very simple basis. The docks which are now filled up, will hold about 300,000 tons. The handling plant gives on the average about 7,000 tons a day and will do this up to December 5 or 6, or perhaps a week or so later. Therefore, the coal to be unloaded here before the season closes added to that in stock, and that which may be held in storage by boats which will come to winter here, can now be estimated at approximately one million tons.

LAKE RATES NOT ABNORMAL

Any Blockade, it is Feared by Shippers Will be at Other End

Fort William.—That the rates down the lakes for grain this season will not be in any way abnormal is the statement made by the leading grain shippers here. The fact that two and one-half cents is being asked for October shipments is by no means extraordinary.

There is no doubt that the rate will go to 3 cents and in November will probably, as in other years, reach four.

In December six or seven cents is usually paid. Nor is a blockade at the head of the Lakes feared so much as a blockade at the other end.

Montreal, Buffalo and the Georgian Bay ports cannot handle the grain that has been shipped and it is expected that the situation will grow worse as the season advances.

Paris.—A woman named Mme. Audrand left Capdenac for Paris recently and leaned out of the railway carriage to say good-bye to her daughter. As she did so she screamed, and said that a bee had stung her. She died of the sting an hour later in the train.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON IX.—THIRD QUARTER, FOR SEPT. 1, 1912

Text of the Lesson, Mark vi, 14-29. Memory verses, 27, 28—Golden Text Rev. ii, 10 (R.V.)—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson is a look backward to the murder of John the Baptist and the cause of it. Tidings of the mighty works done by Jesus and His followers had reached the ears of King Herod, and he was perplexed and thought that John must be risen from the dead. Others said: It is Elijah, and still others said: It is one of the old prophets risen again. Herod said, "John have I beheaded, but who is this of whom I hear such things?" (Luke ix, 7-9). It is said that he desired to see Him, and when just before His crucifixion Pilate sent Him to Herod, who was in Jerusalem at that time, it is written that he was exceedingly glad, for he was desirous to see Him of a long season, because he had heard many things of Him, and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by Him (Luke xxiii, 8). Herod's question, "Who is this?" is one of the greatest of all questions. We find it in Jer. xxx, 21, in connection with His becoming surety for His people; in Isa. lxiii, 1, in connection with His coming in judgment; in Luke v, 21, in connection with His forgiving sins, and in Luke vii, 49, also; in Matt. xxi, 10, as He entered Jerusalem on the ass' colt. Blessed indeed are all who know Him, not only as Israel's Messiah and the great head of the church and the King of kings and Lord of lords, but as their own personal Saviour, who became surety for them, bore their sins in His own body and has assured them of the forgiveness of their sins. Apart from this personal knowledge of Him as the one who loved me and gave Himself for me (Gal. ii, 20), all else is as nothing.

The record goes on to tell us why Herod had killed John. He had taken Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, to be his wife, and John had told him that it was not lawful to do this. Therefore Herodias had an inward grudge against John and would have killed him if she could (verse 19, margin). But Herod, knowing John to be a just and holy man, heard him gladly and did many things and kept and saved him (verse 20, margin). Thus things went on, Herod knowing and admiring the right, yet doing the wrong, and Herodias a sort of Jezebel to help him in the wrong, and the devil controlling all. What a picture of real life it is, for the devil is still the god of this world, and the world lieth in the wicked one!

Now we have an account of one of the devil's supreme occasions—Herod's birthday and a supper for his lords, high captains and chief estates of Galilee. It must have been a great gathering of the notable people of the land, to which multitudes would consider it an honor to be invited—a kind of Belshazzar's feast on a smaller scale, but with the same spirit of impiety and disregard of God. Oh, how much there is of it today and even among those who are called Christians! But the world is ever the same, whether the ungodly or the religious world, and "all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world." "The friendship of the world is enmity with God" (I John, ii, 15-17; Jas. iv, 4). There would no doubt be royal wine in abundance, according to the state of the king, and the eating and drinking would be according to every man's pleasure (Est. i, 7, 8). There was some special dancing also, and the daughter of Herodias danced so well that the king said unto her with an oath, "Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me I will give it thee unto the half of my kingdom" (verses 22, 23). Being instructed by her mother, she asked for the head of John the Baptist in a charger. The king's order must be obeyed, and immediately the executioner does his awful work, and the grudge of the wicked Herodias is gratified as she obtains possession of the head of him she so hated for daring to rebuke her sin. Naboth's death at the hands of Jezebel or by her command was somewhat on the same line of things, as far as the death of the innocent and unoffending to please the wicked was concerned. But the great murderer has been at work ever since he caused the death of Abel, and he is not through yet. Those who are willing to do his work cannot complain if some time they share his doom in the lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels.

It was a wretched birthday for Herod and we saw at the beginning of our lesson that he could not forget his part in the murder of John. He has not forgotten it yet, for we conclude from Luke xvi, 25, that memory plays a very important part in the torment of the lost. Although it seemed hard for John to be thus taken off the earth, it was in reality a good day for him, for he had the gain, the very far better of Phil. i, 21, 23, and he has been well and happy ever since, and the glory of the kingdom still awaits him. His disciples buried his body, but John was not at the burial. It has long been a comfort to me to consider that if the Lord does not come while I live and this mortal body shall some day be buried I will not be at the funeral, but absent from the body, present with the Lord.

Would Liberate Macedonia

Philippopoli, Bulgaria, Aug. 21.—Speeches urging war against Turkey in order to liberate Macedonia were greeted with enthusiasm at one of the biggest political meetings ever held here. After the meeting the crowd, carrying black banners, marched to the military club where they cheered the officers who appeared on the balcony.

The Almighty Dollar

Ernest McGaffey writes a long article upon the people of the United States, in which he hands them more lemons than peaches. As he lives 10 years ar ler the starry flag before he discovered Canada he should know what he is talking about, although his remarks do not apply with equal force to the south and California. We might remark that Canada, since the era of gain and speculation set in, is rapidly following the footsteps of the kind of people that the worship of the dollar will produce in any part of the world. What say people hold the dollar above honor they need sink in the opinion of all who maintain higher ideals. The mania for getting rich quick has driven the American mad, and the result is plainly seen in the long list of murders, robberies, suicides, divorces, autocides, railway wrecks and other stories of graft in horror dished up daily by the press of the United States. They exist horrors with their coffee in the morning and the day is dull that has not give them surfeit. The greed for gold kills honor, reason, reputation, peace, and drives into a living hell of arrest, misery, illness and insanity, unrelieved by love, all unheeded by the vibrations of the divinity that places us upon a higher plane than the hogs that wallow in the mud.

Thinking Themes.

Money has so much to do with happiness. Not that you can buy happiness. But the higher human values are all tangled up with such things as borrowing, paying, inheriting, ever charging, spending and saving.

Seventy-six per cent. of divorces and 83 per cent. of other forms of marital disagreement are caused by money; 87 per cent. of the estrangements between parents and children; 91 per cent of broken friendships; 88 per cent of church troubles; 100 per cent of wars; and 101 per cent. of political quarrel can be traced to money. How these accurate looking figures. There's something about a figure that is like a club. Next time you have an argument use them on your opponent. Don't hesitate; state your figures positively; nobody can deny them; you will bulldoze everyone to silence.

But, to speak in re to lously an I truthfully, if you want to keep friend n ver have any financial dealings with him; not even m n cently. Don't lend out his income. Don't woo for love in ay he speaks. Don't borrow nor lend. Don't assess fraid.

I know two men who travelled all through Europe together, and died in a dispute over a between themselves that neither should spend one cent on the other, each should buy his own railway tickets, feed his own mouth, etc. The quarrel was they are still in speaking terms.

I know another man who never lends money except when he can afford to lose.—Dr. Frank Crane.

Alberta, the First Province.

Alberta, the youngest province in Canada, is the first to comply with the conditions of the Dominion act, respecting juvenile delinquents which will come into operation as soon as possible after the order in council and the certificate of the provincial attorney-general are entered at Ottawa. Authorities on the subject of child-training, including Judge Lindsay of Denver, Judge Mack of Chicago and Judge Adams of Cleveland, declare this will complete the best series of acts for the rescue and protection of children in force anywhere on the American continent.

The act, which was introduced into the Dominion parliament through the efforts of W. L. Scott, a barrister at Ottawa, and assented to in July, 1908, extends the principles that have been applied to the rescuing and protection of child in Alberta since the adoption of the Children's Protection act, passed by the provincial legislature.

It is pr vided that the expense of maintaining a child in the industrial training sc ool may be collected from the parent and guardian, in the event the y are able to pay. The idea is to prevent anyone from swearing his charge is destitute, and the penalty for an adult who either wilfully or through neglect, contributes to a child's delinquency is as high as $500 and a year in prison.

Arrangements are being made with two Protestant and Catholic institutions to care for girl delinquents, while as heretofore boy delinquents will be sent to the industrial training school at Portage La Prairie Man., with which the province has an agreement to handle its juvenile charges requiring reformation.

The Judge of a juvenile court is given the powers of two Justices of the peace or of a stipendiary magistrate. The position is an honorary one and the selection will take into consideration the special qualifications of the person to be appointed for dealing with children. Probation officers have the same powers as constables. The present system will be enlarged and improved, volunteer and paid probation officers being used more extensively than formerly.

H. H. Cracknell, superintendent of neglected and dependent children in Alberta is deeply impressed with the state of child legislation in this province, saying the problem is near a solution with the additional power granted by the Dominion act.

The Passing of General Booth

With the passing of General Booth of Salvation Army fame, probably the most prominent figure in the world of social and moral reform has disappeared. Of the man, much could be written, of his work still more. World wide in its scope, and world wide in its results, though perhaps some have thought there was too much brass band and noise in the army methods, still none could deny the wonderful results they secured in reaching and rescuing those who had fallen by the wayside. Many lives have been its growth since its inception, and though now the leader and founder has gone to his reward still his work will go on. Many who receive the helping hand which the army is ever ready to stretch out to the needy and lowly will bless the heart that planned and the hand that founded and guided for so many years the Salvation Army.

ONE DOLLAR DOWN AND ONE DOLLAR PER WEEK

For five years pays for an improved fruit tract in B C. At the end of the five years it should bring you in $500 to $1,500 per year.

Actual Government Reports for the Kootenay Lake District show greater results from ONE ACRE

I have set aside five hundred acres of choice fruit land, and as soon as I have sold that out your opportunity is lost. August 23 is my next date. A big bunch went up June 27—all bought fro m me except two. Pretty good evidence that what I am offering is right, isn't it? I have sold to several hundred people since January 1st. I live there myself. Have my own fruit ranch on the shores of the beautiful Kootenay Lake. I want you for my neighbor in B. In the last number of the "Call" I see that the Gleichen Exhibition is scheduled to take place Aug 30th and 31st. Now while I suppose that those two months had their reasons for setting those dates, I as one of the farmers of the district and one of those invited think the dates can only result in a very slim attendance of the farmers in the district. Harvest has hardly begun, but should be in full swing the very time of the exhibition. Now while the farmers are busy during the greater part of the year, there is certainly no time but they are more need of at home then during harvest time, and no matter how well any farmer would like to attend the Exhibition, few if any, will leave their ripened fields to take in this or any other exhibition. Of course it is too late to change the dates for this year, but in future I think that some later date should be chosen.

Everyone can afford to smile when the farmer is doing it.

Look here, Soames, he said firmly, beating his own sick repulsion, there's no face in that corner. There's nothing but an old book-shelf. Pull yourself together and don't let imagination play havoc with your senses.

Imagination! Again that laugh struck a cell to Dynecourt's soul. He's dead, I tell you—all England knows he's dead. But I tell you what all England doesn't know, and what I've come on purpose to tell you—he shook his head, chuckling grimly. Nobody knows who killed him. I know—nobody else knows. I haven't been home since it happened. I didn't dare go home. I've come here to tell you I can't bear the secret alone; I've I can't bear it. His eyes suddenly glared round at Dynecourt. I've got enough to bear without that—because—you see—I killed him.

You killed who?

I didn't mean to do it, whined the watched man, opened apparently by Dynecourt's sharp tones. I swear to heaven I never dreamt of killing him, even though his knowing his own history spoilt all my schemes, and yours, too. If he had never found out that he and old Hernesley—

Are you talking about young Tritton? Dynecourt interrupted, the meaning of Soames' broken sentences breaking upon him with dreadful clearness, do you mean that you—

I killed him, yes—I killed him, Soames nodded excitedly, but you are never to breathe it to a soul. The seal of confession, you know—the—I of confession—you can't tell on me, and I've not got to bear it alone any more.

The sort of fiendish joy with which the lawyer spoke made Dynecourt's blood run cold; he looked down on the man in the chair with loathing in his eyes.

You can't understand what you are saying, he said, trying to make himself speak calmly, how could you possibly have killed young Tritton? You were not at Mannamere on the day of the murder. Everybody has seen you there if you had been in the house at the time.

You—you believe me, then? Soames pulled himself upright in his chair. What were you doing there?

That is no concern of anybody but myself, I was there. I saw Tritton—I spoke to him—

Oh! You spoke to him? a gleam of madman's cunning flashed into Soames' eyes. Then there is no reason why they should have accused you of the murder instead of Sir Miles or—of me.

The gleam left his eyes, his excitement died down. He was once more a cowering, shrinking image of humility, afraid of the sound of his own voice. The words had evaporated, Dynecourt the long train of terrors through which he himself had passed during the week following the murder, when each day he had wondered, with a new dread, whether the coroner-by would identify him as having stood and talked to Tritton in the lane; whether some proof would be adduced to show that he, and not Miles Eversley, had been the last person to see the dead man alive. And now the truth was out at last—and—his hands were tied. He could say nothing. Fool that he was, he had promised silence, promised to respect Soames' confidence, little dreaming that confidence would be cut and now he was powerless. And an innocent man was accused of the crime which that skulking creature in the chair had committed.

Dynecourt kicked a footstool out of his way with feverish energy, and paced the room in silence, watched by the lawyer's furtive, frightened eyes.

Why—have you come in the scheme, Soames answered sullenly, surely we are all partners, you and I? And, though I didn't mean killing him, I swear to you I didn't mean to kill him, he is out of the way now, and one more obstacle is gone.

It almost seemed as if the mere fact of confessing his crime had enlightened the man's conscience that he was able now to view the deed itself with an easy mind, even capable indeed of seeing the advantage to be gained from it, but Dynecourt shuddered.

Do you know that Sir Miles has been arrested for Tritton's murder? he asked his stick was found—

Yes, yes, you needn't enter into details, Soames drew back again. I picked up his stick as I went through the copse. It was quite by chance that I had it in my hand when I met Tritton. I only meant to say a few words to him, to try and persuade him to give up his senseless quest. He would never have found out the truth about his mother's marriage. Nobody knew the truth but myself and—

Then you knew it? You knew all along that Tritton's claim was a just one?

What does it matter now? The man is dead. Your way is clear, Hernesley will be dead, too, in a few months. If he doesn't die having for Tritton's murder, that is—

He won't do that, Dynecourt broke in brutally, there is no fear of that ghastly miscarriage of justice. A clue has been discovered.

He had drawn his bow at a venture, remember—only in that moment, and in a lightning flash of thought, his meeting with Tritton at Berry Pond, the bridge, but the arrow, shot at a venture, hit its mark.

A clue! the lawyer gathered his trembling limbs together and rose, A clue! he jerked out, who has found a clue? What is it?

I can tell you no particulars. There was something of force found which has been discovered, and discovered, before, by Miles Eversley, by the young lady who originally found the letter which so altered poor Tritton's fortunes.

She? The lawyer's face became suffused with crimson, has that miserable girl interfered with us, too? What is she—I saw—, his voice faltered, he controlled violently, and Dynecourt saw that he turned the color of ashes.

You saw her—when—me?

In—that room where he was lying all alone. Dynecourt, you must help me to get away! You must, for true—if there is a clue—for the love of heaven get me away! I tell you that girl's face is—is—after me!

Contempt, rather than any kindlier sentiment, was uppermost in Dynecourt by the sight of the man's pitiful cowardice. All the excitement and tornado of a few minutes before had left him. He was once again white, shaking, timid, as by the first entrance, all manliness lost in deadly, overwhelming fear.

They may be on my track any minute, he cried, looking wildly round him, if she found that paper Tritton told me he had got hidden. If—

What paper?

He told me about it, that day, the day I saw him in the lane, the day I—further utterance seemed to choke, he moistened his lips, and went on in a whisper, he made me mad by what he said. I—I was mad, I think, he told me he had a paper safe and sound that would put me to shame, and because I—maddened me, I— Again he broke off, shuddering like an aspen leaf, if there is a clue—a real clue, he continued, grasping Dynecourt's arm in his agitation, I swear by sheer gaspe, you will be in it as well as I. You will ruin me, both—but we will ruin you. But its worse for me, much worse for me—I am not sure—I'll say, get me clear off before his face comes closer. Look—look there—in the corner—just where I saw him before—his sallow face, and—his eyes that are fixed—they follow me wherever I go—take it away, Dynecourt—take it away.

His voice rose to a shriek of terror, his eyes travelled from the corner of the room, and wandered slowly round, as though following some moving object.

It's coming nearer, he whispered suddenly, it's coming quite close—don't let it come—Dynecourt, for the love of heaven, don't let it come. Make him shut his eyes, take away his dreadful face, it is driving me mad—mad—mad!

The Workaday Trio

If your nose is close to the grindstone rough,
And you hold it down there long enough,
In time time you will say there is no such thing as roses
As brooks that babble or birds that sing;
These three will all your world compose—
Just you and the stone and your pore old nose!

But toss deb blossom and lanes are green grass,
And woods do lure with an ardor keen
And leaves are rustling and skies are blue,
No matter whether you see or care;
And how can they come, do you suppose,
To you and the stone and your poor old nose.

If to go and seek them you still refuse
It doesn't hurt them—it's you that lose.
For the sephyrs whisper and lovers sigh,
Whatever you doubt, disclaim, deny!
And the world's a rhyme, while you've but prose—
You and the stone and your poor old nose.

Girl Cured of Disfiguring Pimples

By Cuticura Ointment. Broke Out on Face when Twelve or Thirteen, Were Most Embarrassing. Had Tried Everything.

A Nova Scotia girl, Miss Mabel Morash, of Dover West, writes: "When I was about twelve or thirteen years of age, my face broke out with pimples, and I tried everything to get rid of them, but in vain. The pimples were the worst on my forehead and chin. They caused me to be ashamed to go anywhere into store. Being on my face they caused me disfigurement, and were most embarrassing.

"After trying so many remedies without success, I saw the Cuticura Ointment advertised, and I sent for a box. I got a cake of it to the pimples, and in a week I saw a great change in my face. I kept using it and in a few months it rendered a complete cure. Now you cannot tell I ever had pimples, thanks to the Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Miss Mabel Morash, Mar. 31, 1910.

Baby's Face Like Raw Beef

"My baby boy had a large pimple come on his forehead. It burst and spread all over his face in blotches. It became a mass of raw flesh and smothered with bad pimples. It was awful to look at. The baby's hands itched so he scratch it and cry terribly. I took him to a doctor but he only got worse. I was quite frightened that he would have to be disfigured. Then I got two cakes Cuticura Ointment, together with Cuticura Soap, and in two months had quite cured him. Now of course I use Cuticura Soap for my children." (Signed) Mrs. R. Perry, 69, Waterloo Rd., Aldershot, England, May 21, 1910.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, but to those who have suffered much, lost hope and are without faith in any treatment, a liberal sample of each with a 32-p. booklet on the skin and scalp will be mailed free, on application. REVEL IN CAVE WONDERS

Caves Figured Prominently in History of Ancients—Prehistoric Men Used as Dwellings

Caves undoubtedly were of greater importance to prehistoric mankind than at present, for there is sufficient reason to believe that the first human beings made them their dwelling places.

Looking for an abode several thousand years ago must have been almost as trying as it is now, and no doubt once a creditable cave had been discovered, the family remained there as long as possible, until others strongher than they coveted their place to residence and obtained possession by the simple method of slaying the males and adding the more comely of the females to their family circle.

To dislodge a cave bear from its fastness must have been a tremendous test of skill and courage, taking into consideration the weapons of defense and offense wielded by primitive man.

In the first place to penetrate into a dark cavern, never before visited by man, was a test of moral courage of no mean order, but probably it was relieved to be inhabited by the most evil spirits, any of all of which might wreak vengeance on the daring intruder.

Having subdued his dread of demons and slain the predatory owner of the cave, prehistoric man set about installing his family. Perhaps, thinking discretion the better part of valor, he first sent his wife into the cavern and, all having gone well, no doubt the next procedure was to arrange rude couches on which to sleep. Then it must have been necessary to barricade the opening, after which, no doubt, nothing more was done to increase the material comforts, though possibly the owner sometimes amused himself by cutting rude pictures in the stone.

Much later on, caves were often used as refuges for fugitives, and many of the early Christians must have used them both as a hiding place in times of danger and as churches wherein to worship, the simple ritual which marked the beginning of the Christian era.

To the geologist, caves are a source of the greatest interest, for many of the most interesting discoveries of fossil remains have been found in them. Buried for centuries in the crust of the earth, as is often the case, they reveal to the trained eye of the minerologist many facts that might otherwise never have been discovered.

Nothing is more distasteful beauty. Nothing is more interesting than a cave of stalactites and stalagmites, the one sometimes joined together thus forming stalactite columns on which the light plays in a wonderful in the extreme.

Moreover, considering the ages it has taken to form these conical deposits of carbonate and lime, one can realize how much of the world must have been described the oldest treasure house for fossils.

In different parts of the world are certain caves which are noted for beauty that they are almost unearthly in their splendor. Great galleries lead to and subdivide into chambers, rising many feet to the roof, their crystal walls and fantastic stalactites of the light caused by the feeble rays of a single candle, which are beyond description.

These sights caves formed by great rivers, when the earth was in the throes of volcanic upheavals, are the most wonderful solitary places in the world. They have never since their creation been illumined by a ray of sunshine. Wind and rain have not had their way with them, and they are, as they have been for many thousand years and will no doubt remain until the end.

Baked Potato

The most easily digested potato is the baked potato. Wash the potatoes before baking. And nothing is much more appetizing than a clean steamed, perfectly baked potato. It is good for children, and it is good for grown people to eat. It should be sent to the table salt and milk or sweet new cream. Only a little butter is needed if you use butter, the best butter.

Some people handle their baked potatoes as they would handle eggs, taking them one by one from an oven, but that is needless. Simply pinch them to let out the hot steam, etc. Then serve in a particular about her baked potato once contributed the following recipe:

Baked Potatoes—There are baked potatoes and baked potatoes. Of course the quality of the potato is most important, for in no other way preparing potatoes does the quality count for so much. First scrub with a small brush, kept for the purpose, until perfectly clean. Blemishes cut out then be lightly scraped away and removed, but if the blemish be such as to require cutting, put aside the potato for use in other ways. Neither too large or small potatoes are best, but should be used. Large ones dry out too much in the baking. When the potatoes are ready put them into a hot oven and keep in so until they are fully baked, which should be in about three quarters of an hour. Be sure the oven is hot when you put the baking potatoes as you would be if you were baking bread. Just as you remove the potatoes from the oven strike them, causing them to burst open. Put in a hot napkin and send to the table immediately.

Stuffed baked potatoes.—There is perhaps no doubt but that the finest method of cooking a world is baked to hot ashes right next to a bed of live coals.

Baked Fiske Potatoes.—Scrub and bake large size mealy potatoes. Remove a piece of each, scoop out the inside, mash, add butter until as light as snowdrift, season with salt, pepper, and butter and return to the potato skins, kept hot in the oven.

Post—Why did you dismiss your glorious cook?

Parker—It was the only way to get our guests to go home.—Lippincott's.

Lawyer (to witness)—Did you say that an incompetent man could keep a hotel just as well as anybody?

Witness—No, I said an inexperienced man could.—The Hotel Guide.

THE RIGHTS OF PRODUCTION

Interesting Suggestions Made at Paris International Art Congress

The International Art Congress recently held in Paris passed many resolutions which it is hoped the delegates of the governments represented may take up and indorse by legislation.

The most important of these dealt with the claims of the state and public authorities to deal with the reproduction of any works of art they may acquire.

It was unanimously resolved that, as regards a living artist, the rights should remain with him, and any authority to copy must be signed by him—but that the directors of picture galleries may authorize single copies for the purpose of study, on condition that such copy is in no way a reproduction in size of the original, that it shall have clearly signed upon it it is after the author, and that it shall bear the date of the copy, with these words: Copy, Rights of reproduction reserved.

An Eye for Business

The late Jules Ferry, of Paris, the coffee merchant, who left an estate of 100 million dollars, often said that a great deal of his success was due to his knowledge of human nature.

A fellow-lodger, with a knuckle once said to a New York coffee broker, that he should exercise the same keen discretion which the druggist showed.

A woman, you know, a woman comes in, turns round, a druggist's and said:

Have you any creams for restoring the complexion?

Restoring, rises? You mean preserving, said the druggist heartily.

And he then sold the woman $17 worth of complexion cream.

How She Voted

At a luncheon in New York Dr. Lyman Abbott, sipping a glass of ice cold milk, told a woman suffrage story.

I had heard a lot, he said, about the wonderful success of woman suffrage in Australia; so, meeting an Australian woman, I asked her about it.

How did you vote, madam, at the last election?

The Australian woman answered with a simper:

I always pawnier gown, sir, with a large mauve hat trimmed with mauve carnations.

A Poser for Nurse

Nurse—

Little Freddie's voice broke the twilight stillness of the nursery. For the twentieth time, and nurse began to get angry.

Well, what do you want now? she snapped.

I only wanted to ask you—

I'll answer no more questions this night, said nurse firmly, as she went on folding up her charge's clothes. Don't you know that curiosity killed a cat, Freddie?

The small boy lay in silence stunned by the wonder of this statement. Then he burst out again:

Nurse, what did that cat want to know?

Detected

Captain, you told me this boat would reach Sydney by 6 o'clock.

Did I, madam? Well, I must have been mistaken. But there is about twenty minutes.

But the land isn't in sight yet!

Indeed, madam, you have caught me in another lie.

What Could He Do?

Spare me a dollar, old man? The clergyman stopped and looked round. He gave a start of surprise. Instead of the old, white-haired waster, he saw a youth of nineteen confronting him.

My lad, he exclaimed, I'm ashamed of you! A strong, healthy chap like you ought to be at work instead of living like—

How came you to do it? I'll tell, sir, supplied the youth, it's like it: Twelve months ago I was ill, and the doctor forbade me to do any work until he told me. Just after that he died, and what can I do?

The clergyman is still pursuing over the problem.

No man can serve two masters, said the scribe to one of his parishioners.

Maybe not, that yer Riverence. Me brother tried it, and now he's doing time for bigamy.

Mistress—Well, I'm sorry you want to leave me, Mary. But what's your reason?

(Mary keeps silent).

Mistress—Something private?

Mary (suddenly)—No, mum; please it's the mistress.

Algy—Anything unusual happen while I was out, James?

Valet—Yes, sir, none of your credit lines called.

Little Joe—Mamma, I was awfully afraid when you shut me in the dark closet.

Mamma—Why, Joe, what were you afraid of?

Little Joe—I was afraid I couldn't find the cake.

Little Lola's mother was so hoarse one morning that she could hardly speak.

Mamma, said Lola, I'm sorry you've got such a sore voice.

To Have and to Hold

Once upon a time he had been an officer in a crack regiment, but he had fallen on evil days, and in the end was compelled by force of circumstances to resign his commission and to enlist in another regiment as a humble private.

He found it impossible, however, to tally to his position, and on one occasion, being requested by a sergeant to hold his horse—a duty that he had never performed—he remarked:

I don't forget—er—sergeant, that once I held his Majesty's commission.

The sergeant eyed him, not without respect by any means, and then remarked:

Well, youngster, I'm sorry, but you will now have to hold one of his Majesty's horses!

Seizing the Opportunity

Whilst out for a walk with her little cousin, Ethel saw a chance to rip the lace on her skirt as she crossed a stile.

Ethel was quite willing and eager for the lace was very pretty, and stooping down and carefully tearing off the piece that is hanging loose?

Ethel was delighted to be eager to please, and duly commenced her task. Presently a horrid noise was a sound of tearing, really much more tearing than was necessary to remove a small length of loose lace.

Haven't you finished yet? asked little sevenyears.

Yes, replied the little girl, rising heavily, and I've got a big piece. I wanted enough for my dolly's skirt while I was about it. And the little girl put one piece enough.

Darling Came

The summer day was nearly over, and the last of the crowd had gone. The pier was left to the lovers who gave for a young lady and man on the latter, and the former to the former. Along the road parallel with the promenade came a red-faced old gentleman.

He gave a hasty look over the sands and called out:

Darling!

Then he took on the pier gave a short laugh, while the lady looked up from her book, but budged not an inch.

Australia—Australia! he cried in even louder voice. But there was no response on the sands or the pier people could scarcely contain themselves for laughter.

The stout man lost all patience, and picking up a stone threw it in the impossible of protest from the piertles, in the direction of the lady. Then he turned and ran down the road round to see what was the matter.

Darling, you've been a long time for the last time, are you coming?

Darling got to his feet, and the lobsters on the pier then melted away to think of other things.

INVITING SICKNESS

People Whose Blood Supply is Scanty are in Danger of a Breakdown

Thin or impure blood is an invitation to sickness. The blood is at the very core and right to health and any lack of strength or purity in the blood is a weakness in the defence against disease. Anaemia is the doctor's name for lack of blood, its surest symptom is pallor. Anaemia does not confine itself to any one class, though it is particularly common to young girls between the ages of 14 and 17, when nature makes special demands upon the blood supply. The same lack of blood, however, prevents quick recovery after is grippe, fevers, malaria, and other troubles, at any period of age, and in persons who have been under unusual mental or physical strain. That is the reason Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best tonic for those who have been ailing. They actually make new pure blood, which drives out all the impurities, and new strength and vitality. Mrs. George Roy, Clair, Sask., says: I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and am glad to say they have done me much good. I might have led to more serious trouble but I am now free of it. I recommend it to all who are troubled with St. Vitus dance, but the use of the Pills prevented this and made him well and strong. I do not know any better investment than to keep a half a dozen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house, as they will be found to save expensive doctor's bills.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

More About The Loading Platform

The present agitation of Western farmers will never know the difficulties and delays experienced by their predecessors in the earlier years when no one could get a carload of grain shipped in bulk except by loading it through an elevator. The system forced the majority of farmers to depend on the elevator companies at arbitrary prices, and oft times to submit to heavy dockage and other annoyances, all tending continual dissatisfaction. Now however the distribution of cars as fixed by the Grain Act, and the use of the loading platform, provide facilities which enable the farmer to secure satisfactory treatment in the disposal of his grain and the highest market prices at time of sale. Every farmer therefore, should more and more endeavor to use the loading platform in shipping his grain to the terminal elevators. It is the safeguard of the farmers' freedom in disposing of his grain to the best advantage for himself. If farmers refrain from using the loading platform freely, it might result in the tying down of cars to the elevators, and the elevator owners are strongly opposed to it. It is easy to understand why elevator people desire the loading platform abolished. The railway people on their part say it delays the loading of cars and helps to cause car shortage. This we know to be nonsense, because frequently after cars are loaded, whether with grain, coal, lumber or other merchandise, they are sidetracks for days and even weeks instead of being promptly moved forward to destination. In the engine shortage and shortage of competent trail men that mostly causes grain blockades on railways and not lack of cars. Let every farmer therefore, do all he can to use the loading platform and become an independent shipper. In subsequent advertisements we will endeavor to detail the many and enormous advantages accruing into cars compared with loading through elevators.

We handle the farmers grain strictly on commission, make liberal advances on car bills of lading, supervise the grading at time cars are inspected, secure the highest prices at time of sale and make prompt returns when sold. Write us for shipping instructions and market information.

The Meanest

A well-to-do Chicago real estate owner went into a hardware store in that city and asked the proprietor for a pound of nails. The small package was made up and the price charged. Handing to the merchant, when the customer asked if the purchase could be sent to his house, which was in a distant part of the city. The merchant refused, but calling an errand boy, handed him the parcel, with the nickel he had just received, and said:

Here, Johnny, take the car and take this parcel out to Mr. Blank's house.

What! said the customer, are you going to give the boy the nickel to take the parcel out?

Why, certainly, said the merchant. I wouldn't think of asking him to walk so far.

Well, said the meanest man in Chicago, if you would just as soon give me the five cents I will take it out myself.

You must take it. And immediately.

Aw, papa, I downater.

William, if you don't take that medicine I'll put you right to bed this minute, without giving you a drop of it.

William was so scared that he took it. That's the way to enforce discipline.

USE OF LEFT HAND

Belief Growing That Man Should be Ambidextrous

Why is it that we neglect to use the left hand so much?

Among English-speaking people 97 out of every 100 are right-handed when they reach maturity. Out of every 100 such persons 97 are born right-handed, three are born left-handed and the remaining 80 are born without preference as to either hand. Eighty are influenced to become strongly right-handed during early childhood.

No great asset in the world is so neglected as the average left hand. Formerly all the world was ambidextrous. Primitive man had no preference which hand he used. And in various parts of the world efforts are now being made to revive the use of the left hand.

Japan has for many years been teaching two-handedness to the men of its army, and in its Public schools. The German government is following Japan's example. Sir Robert Baden-Powell, hero of the Siege of Mafeking and founder of the Boy Scouts, does not consider a man a well-trained soldier unless he can mount equally well on either side of his horse, use the sword, revolver and lance equally well with both hands.

Guarding a Royal Train

Few people know that the passage of a Royal train is guarded almost every yard of the way, be the journey of the Sovereign short or long.

Many people laugh when they read of lines upon lines of soldiers drawn up along the railway medals in Russia where the Czar travels; but the same thing practically occurs in England, only without the ostentatious display of uniforms. The linesmen which the Royal train is to pass is quite as effectively guarded, though to all appearance there is nobody there.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Every woman will read with interest the letter of Mrs. Geo. Bradshaw, quoted below. It tells of years of great suffering from Nervous Headach- and other symptoms arising from weak, watery blood and a starved, exhausted condition of the nervous system.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Cozy Nook, Harlowe, Ont., writes:—"I am glad to state that I received benefits from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which I failed to get any place else. I was troubled for many years, in fact from my early womanhood, with weak, watery blood and given to dropsy. I suffered untold agonies from nervous sick headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, in fact was a semi-invalid for many years. I used many kinds of patent medicines and got no help, and tried every new cure for that came along, but all failed to help me. Doctors told me I had no blood, and that my heart and kidneys were diseased, and that I had so many complaints there was not much use in doctoring up one or two. Four years ago I took six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was glad to see I felt better, and then got six more, and then another six—of many of my complaints. When I began taking Nerve Food I weighed 119 pounds, and to-day I weigh 139, and am 45 years old.

A German merchant, resident in Moscow, has left all his property in mounting to half a million, to all those of his employees who have served under him for five years or more. Their portions are to be reckoned on the basis of the first annual wage established by the number of years they have been in his service. Those who have worked for the firm less than five years receive a joint sum of $50,000, which is to be divided according to wages and length of service. The staff have decided to organize the business inherited by them into a joint stock company.

A Grim Proviso

A curious occupation has sprung up in Paris. Several doctors have received a circular from a newly-formed agency, which offers to find patients for them. The fees are rather high. They vary from £20 to £100. On receipt of the fee the doctor is assured a list of 20 consumptives, 30 epileptics, 20 people suffering from cancer and so forth. He is then at liberty to call and offer his services. The agency's circular declares that the lists of patients are compiled from absolutely certain sources and that the money will be returned if there are more than three mistakes in each list. This is rather a grim proviso.

A Remarkable Dog

A dog which had, during nine years of its life, collected upwards of 16,000 coins under remarkable conditions, died on Saturday at Reading. The money had been devoted to local charities. The dog never carried a box, but begged for a coin. For a half-penny the dog demanded a biscuit as a condition of releasing the coin, and two biscuits were required in exchange for a penny or two coins. In all, the dog had earned 18,000 biscuits in the course of collecting.—Exchange.

While the king was looking at a pet pony which had been brought up for his inspection the pony proved somewhat restless.

Anxious to Know

Officer, she said, hastening to the policeman, that person has been following me for an hour.

ARE PLANETS INHABITED?

Scientific Opinion Would Appear to be Strongly in the Negative

That fascinating speculation—the probability of the planets being inhabited—is discussed in the journal of the Royal Astronomical society of Canada by Prof. Robert Grant Aitken of the Lick Observatory. Prof. Aitken summarizes all the latest researches, and his conclusion in regard to the possibility of the planets are as follows:

The moon—The moon must be regarded as practically a dead world, although it may be that low forms of vegetable life are sustained by water vapor exuding through crevices from the moon's interior.

Jupiter—Obviously in such a world there can be no question of life. The conditions are chaotic. Jupiter is a semisun, probably gaseous throughout, with matter distributed as on the sun, and there is no well defined surface or crust.

Saturn—This planet resembles Jupiter, but it is probably not so far advanced and is even less fit for life it than than its neighbor.

Uranus and Neptune—They are so far away from the sun that its heat and light can hardly be effective in protecting life upon these two planets even should life in any way originate there.

Satellites of Jupiter and Saturn—It is possible some of them may have water and an atmosphere dense enough for life. This is merely conjectural and not very probable.

Mercury — It apparently always keeps the same face towards the sun; it gets seven times as much heat as the earth and neither its eternal night nor its everlasting day is suitable for any form of life. It seems to have no atmosphere.

Venus—In size, mass, density and surface gravity it nearly resembles the earth. It has a dense, cloud-filled atmosphere. The whole question as to life on Venus turns on the problem as to the length of Venus's day. If its day equals its year, that planet must be utterly desolate. The question is still an open one, though the evidence favors the belief that the day and the year of Venus are of equal length.

Mars — There undoubtedly are strong markings on Mars, but astronomers are not agreed as to whether the markings are natural or artificial canals or mere earthquake cracks. The Martian atmosphere is rare and there are no permanent bodies of water on the planet. There is not enough water on the whole of Mars to fill one of the American great lakes. The so-called polar ice caps and belts on Mars may be deposits of carbon dioxide. The heat that can be said is that while the temperature on Mars is very low there may be on that planet, by a limited extent, the conditions essential to life—probably only vegetable and animal life, but no beings of intelligence.

Mirrors at Street Corners

Mirrors are now being placed at corners for the drivers of vehicles a view of the cross-streets have been installed in at least two towns in England, according to a recent issue of the Surveyor and Municipal and County Engineer. In Folkestone there is an acute angle at one crossing, where one corner is built up close to the curb. In this corner is placed a 24 by 15 inch mirror, supported on gas pipe standard at such an angel that drivers of vehicles coming towards the end of the corner from either of the two opposite streets can see up the street at right angles to their path. The engineer in charge states that owing to the impossibility of motorists seeing any oncoming traffic several accidents and narrow escapes have occurred at that point. Since the mirror has been fixed he has not heard of anything approaching an accident. He does, however, think frost has a tendency to dull the mirror, which is occasionally cleaned by a passing lamplighter when cleaning his lamps at Martinsburg, in Wiltshire, a mirror is now by cab fast fixed in size, supported on standards so that its top is 16 feet above the street, occupies an angular position at the apex of a closed right curve.

Fought an Eagle

A strange combat occurred a few mornings ago at Upper North Sydney says a Cape Breton paper. Mr. Harry Moore, a well known milk man, noticed a commotion among his three Ayreshires saw a large dark-colored bird making repeated swoops down among the animals. On hurrying to the spot the discovered a large eagle furiously attacking the head and shoulders of a yearling bull. The animal tossed his ground well and tried to butt in to meet the charge of the savage bird, whose beak and talons had left several large gashes in the bull's neck and shoulders. Mr. Moore, armed with only a milk pail rushed in to take a hand in the argument, when the bird immediately attacked by the eagle on whom the resounding whacks of the milk pail seemed to have little effect. Mr. Moore might have fared badly from scratches had not the neighbor, Thomas Jackson, made a timely arrival with a stout stake, with which the bird was driven off. Mr. Moore has several of the large quill feathers of the eagle as a memento of his unique experience.

Black Fox Farming

There is in Prince Edward Island a new development which is attracting great attention in the shape of raising fur-bearing animals. It has been proved that the climate of the province is particularly suitable for the breeding of black foxes, and a number of farmers have embarked in the industry with the most profitable results. The fur of the black fox, owing to its rarity, has become exceedingly valuable, and the Commissioner of Agriculture for Prince Edward Island states that a pair of live foxes were sold recently for $25,000 and another pair for over $30,000. The price of this Sprina's pups was over $10,000 a pair and $5,000 a pair, while a cash sale, varying from 10 to 25 per cent is being paid for foxes that are due to be born in the Spring of 1913. Black fox farming as it is called, does not entail any considerable expense, the ranches consisting usually of an acre of ground with a steel wire enclosure about 50 feet square for two pairs, containing little houses for the animals.

Science to Imitate Nature

The view has been advanced in more than one quarter during the next two or three centuries invention probably will be in the direction of imitating the wonderful economy and the simple methods of Nature.

An instance in point is the electric eel. Its electric organ is in no sense a storage battery, but a conference by which electric energy is liberated at the moment when it is required. At rest the organ shows no small an electric force that a galvanometer is needed to detect it, but a sudden nervous impulse from the brain causes it to liberate a potential of many volts with very little heat and so small an expenditure of matter as to defy the most expert chemist to weigh it. Pirelli's glow worms are very deep and fishes produce light without heat at a cost which would make a match an extravagant outlay.—Harper's Weekly.

Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the very best medicine that can be taken to bring relief. These pills are especially compounded to deal with dyspepsia, and their curative qualities in this respect can be vouched for by legions of users.

A dime-in-the-slot photographic machine is, it is announced, about to be put on the market. The sitter places the coin in the slot and pulls a lever; the mechanism turns on an electric light, drops a plate into position behind the lens, opens the shutters for three seconds, develops fixes and washes the plate, and in fifty-seven seconds delivers a picture, finished and in a neat frame. If the mechanism should fail to work the dime is automatically returned.

Do fishes remember? A scientist who has been investigating the question that has puzzled a rock cylinder containing food and also an empty green cylinder in the aquarium with a single fish the latter soon learned to enter the red cylinder for food. It was unnerved and avoided the other one. Moreover, the fish went into the red vessel and waited until some crumbs were dropped into it, which he then ate. At other times the fish entered the baited red vessel even though he did not appear to desire food, seeing that he did not eat at such times. The factor of hunger was therefore eliminated here and the existence of a habit or a reflex action was proved.

THUS you will have three times as many chances of winning a cash prize. You do not have to use any certain amount of Canada Cement to win a prize. There are absolutely no "strings" to this offer.

There are 108 prizes—three prizes for each Province (three of $50 ; three of $25 ; three of $15; and three of $10) and you compete only with other farmers in your own Province and not with those all over Canada.

It makes no difference whether you have ever used cement. Many of last year's winners had not used it until they entered the contest. Longest English Word

What is the longest word in our language. It is said, has been suggested to a correspondent by the present discussion as to disestablishment. In 1882 the women of Germany employed in occupations other than domestic service were over four million; twenty-five years later the figures stood at eight millions, which is an increase relatively much greater than the grain in population. While the employment of the men has increased 20 per cent during the last twelve years, the employment of women has increased 87 per cent during the same time. At present a full third of the economic labor of the empire is being carried on by women. Statistics recently published show that there are 8,500,000 wage-earning women in Germany, which means that nearly every second adult woman is earning her own living and directly contributing to the wealth of the country.

Welsh Doctors' Odd Fees

Welsh nonsuiters used to pay their doctors on a singular scale. At the court of the Gywnedd Kings the physician received a pound's worth of beer for every broken limb. An order of precedence among the household officials, and the fees were carefully defined. For curing a Beah wound that was not dangerous the doctor was allowed no other perquisite than such of the garments of the wounded person as were stained with blood. But for curing any of what were called the three dangerous wounds, he was granted a fee of 120 pence and his maintenance during the cure, beside the blood stained garments.—London Chronicle.

Farmers Need Cheap Money

One of most important demands in the farmers platform is the demand for a cheaper money or direct government loan to the farmers. It was fully indorsed at the last Farmers Union Convention, it has since been taken up and discussed by every local Union. The Montreal Family Herald and Weekly Star has taken the matter up and it has created a wide spread discussion. Right now the farmers Union executives are trying to obtain all the information possible from the Australian Colonies where it is claimed to be in successful operation. That it takes considerable capital to start farming on the western plains today, anybody knows who has tried it. It is not as when eastern Canada or the middle States were settled, then a man required little or nothing to begin with.

In those early days about all a man needed to start with was an ox-team, a covered wagon, a few cooking utensils, some simple tools, an axe and a gun. When he arrived at his new home he found plenty of timber to build his house, other buildings and fences etc.; game and fish were plentiful. He cleared a few acres each year and what he raised he bartered away at the nearest town for the few things he had to buy. It is true that in those days under those conditions it took a man a life time to get where a farmer on the plains will get in ten years if he is successful.

It is not long ago that I met a man from Northern Wisconsin, who had spent 25 of his best years in the woods clearing 10 acres and on seeing Alberta he exclaimed "that he had been a fool for not coming here sooner," but while it is true that the man starting on the prarie may accumulate wealth quicker than the man starting in the forest, it is also true that unless he can get capital he is hampered and up against it all around. The class of people coming here from the States, who have sold out their farms at a good price, are as a matter of fact able to take care of themselves, but the great majority who have little or nothing left after bringing their families here are entirely up against it. A man may get his land free but he soon finds that every board for his house, buildings an d fences, his stock, machinery etc., must be bought and he must live somehow until he begins to raise crops.

Now as nearly everything he must buy is controlled by combines, he pays exorbitant prices for all necessaries, especially when he is compelled to buy on time.

Most unmarried men, who take up homesteads, make no attempt to farm themselves. Somehow or other, they manage to put in six months of the year on their land, get just enough broke to keep within the limits of the law, work out for someone else the other six months of the year, and after proving up they sell out. Married men who must stay on their homesteads, generally manage to get a few horses and implements on time, they work out with their team to meet the payments, and consequently can do little or nothing at home.

As soon as they obtain their patent, they are obliged to mortgage the homestead to pay debts already incurred or to buy stock and machinery. Now, the $800 or $1000 that can be borrowed on a homestead is but a drop in the bucket in buying horses and other stock, putting up building, and getting the necessary machinery to properly operate a modern farm. It is enough however to keep the borrower in misery and constant fear that he may lose his farm. In case a few good years came, the farmer might be able to pay interest and principal, but when the crops fail then the farmer is unable to pay neither, and is apt to lose his farm, in fact hundreds have had them taken away.

Now then, if a farmer after obtaining his patent could apply to the government for a loan large enough to enable him to stock his farm, purchase machinery for cash at a much less price than he now pays, buying on time and get his money at a longer period say 10 to 20 years at 4½ or 5 per cent. interest, as they do in Australia, conditions for the farmer would be much improved. A few bad years then would not spell ruin, the low rate of interest would not be hard to pay and in the longer period he was given to repay the loan there should be enough good years to enable him to do so. This would give an immense boost to farming, the country would settle up and thus help all other industries, etc.

Why should the Government not help the farmer as well as the railroads. Both are equally necessary for the development of the country, and both should receive like consideration.

Our provincial governments could obtain the money at 4 per cent, and could lose nothing in loaning it to the farmer at 5 per cent, taking security in the land and only loaning a certain proportion of value, but the longer term and cheaper interest would mean a lot to the farmer.
